WHAT IS THE NEW SCHOOL FOR MORALS & JUDGES?

John M. Stroh, Bell Telephone Laboratories, New Haven, Connecticut, has developed a method for separating the right-handed enantiomer from the metal chelates of the dinitriles. The technique which he has chosen is based on the use of a column of Chromatogard, a Ciba product, which contains a polyacrylate polymer having a D,L-phenylalanine residue as a chiral selector. This column is used in conjunction with a column of Dowex 50W-X8, which is a cation exchange resin. The separation is carried out at room temperature, and the elution is effected by a mixture of 0.1 N NaOH and 0.1 N NaCl.
